Good morning Mr. Tutto,

As you well know, Thomas Insulation provides a service for us (FT Services) here on the Firebag Site in Sustaining Projects.

In my practice as the Safety Coordinator for FT Services I will get with our Sub Contractors prior to any work start to ensure all certifications are up to date, training/orientations are completed and contact information is provided for reporting structures.

I have been with my company for several years now but have only been with our Team on the Firebag Site since November 2013.

The intent of my email to you this morning is to extend a well deserved Recognition to your Team for their consistent organization and care of the workers here on Site.

In meeting with Dan O'Connor, Projects Lead and Debby Bracewell, Projects Lead Assistant some time ago, they took the time to show me their processes of documentation and how this is maintained.

Debby and I made an arrangement at that time to ensure all relevant daily documents are provided to me at the end of the day for our own records (only for the days Thomas Insulation is conducting work for FTS).

Debby has never skipped a beat in providing this to us, nor have I ever had to 'chase this down.' Her attention to detail and timeliness is refreshing and a great asset in assisting our daily scope.

I have attached a reference of the documentation that is provided to us for your review.

At the field level, Projects Lead - Dan O'Connor took me around to where the crews were working for a visual tour and meet and greet with the CRAFT personnel.

As a Safety professional, I am trained to be observant at all times and with discretion. We know that following procedures in the field is driven by Supervision which was proven most evident to me while on my Tour with Dan.

The CRAFT were welcoming to my presence and well prepared with the proper PPE and documentation. They took the time to show me what they were working on and explained their processes of Work Scope, FLRA, Hazard ID/Near Miss and Emergency Response Planning.

What this shows me is, they have all the correct processes in place and are focused on conducting their work with 'Safety First' in mind.

This could not be accomplished without their Supervision guiding them and being a part of what they do every day!

Working collaboratively is the key to everyone's Safety and Success. I am grateful for the people you have in place who oversee this to make it happen.

Thank you for your time Mr. Tutto and from our Safety perspective, please extend my most sincere appreciations to everyone on your Team here at Firebag!

Kindest regards,

Vivian van Osch
